

Subject: Small Claims Patent Court Comments

Date: Thursday, September 1, 2022 at 5:11:47 PM Eastern Daylight Time

From: Jeremy S

To: Kazia Nowacki, ACUS Information

CC: Jeremy S

Dear Administrative Conference,

Life, liberty, and Property - John Locke (who's words were inspiration to Thomas Jefferson's Declaration of Independence) once said free people are entitled to these natural rights. To me and many others, this includes intellectual property, with the aim to pursue a passion based on that property and inspire innovation, providing the opportunity of the entrepreneurial spirit and the American Dream.

I am an inventor and small business owner with one current patent, and several pending applications. The USPTO patent system is the bedrock for innovation in our country, innovation coming from all companies large and small. Small business is instrumental to this innovation with everyday people coming up with innovative ideas. Having the ability to protect your innovation through intellectual property (especially as a small business) is paramount to pursuing that passion, and providing that opportunity of the entrepreneurial spirit and the American Dream.

Our current system does not allow individuals like me to defend my patent rights and benefit from my intellectual property. This is the opposite of what was intended for our US Patent System.

While a small claims court is a step in the right direction, rather than a small claims court, there should be a small entity court that enables a small entity to defend its patent rights. It needs the due process of an Article III Court but must be faster and less expensive.

Thank you for what you do and your support.

Best,
Jeremy

—
Jeremy Sue flow

